Interviews with Big Book authors

From Hartford, Conn.:

You really know how to hurt a guy. Your series of interviews with authors of stories in the Big Book was just wonderful. I was so impressed that I got my group to order three more subscriptions. Why did you stop?

I used to think the Grapevine was facile, juvenile, and beneath my intelligence. Now I think either your writing has greatly improved or some of my grandiosity has subsided!

Whatever the reason, keep up the good work and think about some more of those interviews.

Little Rickie B.

Editor's Note: As you can see from the "Coming Attractions" on page 48, we've found another Big Book author to interview. And, by the way, the only reason we haven't done more interviews is that we haven't been able to locate any more authors of Big Book stories. So, if anybody out there knows of any more Big Book authors we haven't interviewed — who are still alive — please let us know!
